

Stargazer Publishing Company

Stargazer Publishing Company was founded in 1995 to be the premier publisher of user-friendly editions of difficult-to-use educational materials. The initial titles included The World's Easiest Guide to Using the APA and The World's Easiest Guide to Using the MLA, used by college students to format research papers. Stargazer is proud that many professors and colleges have adopted its easy-to-use versions.

In 2000, the company moved from Westminster to Corona, California, and expanded its mission from books that educate and empower to those that also enlighten and entertain. This includes biographies and fiction for adults. From the Periodic Table to Production: The Life of Thomas Midgley, Jr., by Thomas Midgley IV, and Longbourn, a sequel to Pride and Prejudice, by Nickolae Gerstner, are two of these titles.

The company started its line of middle-grade fiction with the publication of The Lost Treasure of the Golden Sun, by Carol J. Amato, the first title in The Phantom Hunters, a Nancy Drew-style paranormal series that takes readers on adventures to different cultures. The second title in this series is The Secret of Blackhurst Manor, due out in 2018. Other middle-grade titles include If Looks Could Kill, by Jeanne Lazo, and the first two titles in the Monster Moon mystery series by BBH McChiller: Curse at Zala Manor and Secret of Haunted Bog. Aesock's Travels, by Gretchen McMasters, is a bilingual (English and Spanish under one cover) historical book for grades 2-4. In keeping with Stargazer's educational focus, classroom materials for various grade levels are available for each children's book.

Books for writers include How to Write Mysteries for Kids, by Jeanne Lazo, and How to Start and Run a Writers' Critique Group, by Carol J. Amato. The latter is the first title in Stargazer's line of Quick Guides.

In 2012, Stargazer began its new line of books for business. The first titles were The DNA of the Resilient Organization, by Sandra Suran, and Mastering the Money Maze, by Diane Weklar. Also in this line is Maximize Your Competitive Edge, by Carol J. Amato, the second title in Stargazer's Quick Guide series.
